What is the Harvard essay format?

The Harvard essay format is one of the most used essay formats by students. Just like the Chicago essay format, the Harvard essay format is used by students when they write academic essays or research papers. Students who are in the field of philosophy, behavioral sciences, and humanities are told by their instructors and supervisors to use the Harvard essay format.

However, the use of the Harvard writing format is not restricted to these three disciplines. As mentioned before, it ultimately depends on the university or your supervisor to conclude what essay format you should use.

Since it has become so undeniably obvious what the Harvard essay format is, let us take a gander at the complete framework of the format in the accompanying section. The accompanying section will help in answering your question, 'What points do I have to remember when I write my essay in Harvard format?'

The framework of the Harvard essay format

The framework will start by characterizing some general rules that are a part of the Harvard essay format. Adhering to the general guidelines that you should remember

- Use a 1-inch margin on all four sides of the paper.
- Only two font styles are recommended in a Harvard format essay. These fonts are Times New Roman and Arial. The font size should be no larger than 12pt
- Just like other essay formats, remember to use double-line spacing.
- Use an indent before you start each new paragraph. This indent is usually half an inch
- In the top right corner of the page, incorporate the page number. This page number is actually part of the header.
- Another thing to add to the header is a short title of the paper. This should be placed on the right of the page number.
- The header on the first page will be slightly not the same as the rest of the paper. It is the short title of the paper followed by the words 'Running head' in all capital and has to be added to the top left corner of the page.

Before you start writing the text of your essay, incorporate a title. This title should be aligned to the center and should not be unabashed, underlined, or italicized.

While writing the title, remember to capitalize all the main words of your title. Prepositions, conjunctions, and short articles should not be capitalized. Now that you are aware of the general rules, let us take a gander at how headings and subheadings are formatted in a Harvard essay format.

Each heading that comes after your title is a subheading. Subheadings are used in a Harvard essay format to partition the essay into various chapters. Level 1 headings have almost the same formatting as the title of your essay. This means that it should not be flagrant, underlined, or italicized. If you are still confused you can also consult a professional paper writing service online.

Level 2 headings are somewhat not the same as the level 1 headings. All level 2 headings of your essay should be left-aligned. They are not underlined or flagrant however are italicized. Each paragraph you start after a heading should be indented. This indent should not be any the greater part of an inch.

Allow us now to cover how the cover page should be formatted. The cover page includes the title of your essay, your name, and the name of your institute. Remember to focus the title so that it shows up at the focal point of the page. After the title, you should add your name. Your name should be at exactly the halfway mark of the page. A little distance underneath your name, you should list the name and number of your course. After this comes the name of your professor and then, at that point, the name of your university.

Various parts of the format incorporate a framework and a reference page. The framework is the backbone of your essay. It lists all the headings and subheadings of your essay. The reference page lists all the outside sources that you have remembered for your essay. These outside sources can be either primary sources or secondary sources. The format dictates that these sources should be listed in the alphabetical request.

Citation in Harvard essays is similar to APA. The only distinction is that you do not add a comma between the name of the author and the year. An example of a Harvard essay citation would be (Author 2021). In APA, this exact citation would be (Author, 2021)
